BURR'S TREASON.
NARRATIVE OF BLENNERHASSET'S ESCAPE.
(From a forthcoming volume by Mr. William H. Safford, of Cincinnati.)

Wilkinson was Commander-in-chief of the army of the United States, and Governor of Natchitoches. His whole force was in active service, thoroughly disciplined and drilled.
Obeying the dictates of honor as a soldier, if not prompted by the impulses of a patriot, he was bound by every consideration of duty to arrest the progress of the scheme. Of all others, therefore, he was the most to be feared and the most to be avoided by Burr. Yet while his plans are but partially revealed to his acknowledged confederates, while he diligently endeavored to elude the suspicion of his enemies, Burr suffers no opportunity to escape without informing Wilkinson of his designs, and seeking his advice on questions of doubtful expediency.
To regard the General, therefore, in any other light than a chief accomplice of Burr, after the perusal of the cipher letter, would render the act of penning it the sheerest imaginable folly.

But Burr was the victim of misplaced confidence. Wilkinson, through considerations of a personal character, fully to be explained hereafter, revealed the plan, and fastened the treason upon Burr. On the 21st of October, he communicated the substance of the cipher letter to Mr. Jefferson, then President of the United States, who, on the 27th of November, issued his proclamation warning and enjoining those who had been led to participate in the unlawful enterprise to withdraw, without delay; and requiring all officers, civil and military, of the United States, or any one of the States and Territories, to be vigilant, each within his respective department, in searching out and bringing to punishment all persons engaged or concerned in the undertaking.

Under the authority and by virtue of this proclamation, the Virginia militia of Wood county were called out, by command of Col.
Hugh Phelps, of Parkersburg, as soon as he had received the intelligence, which was not until the 8th or 9th of December.

On the 10th of the month, Blennerhas-set having received information of the preparations making by Colonel Phelps (who, it was expected, would march to the island on the following day) to take possession of his person, boats, and stores, became much alarmed.
Having advised with his followers as to the pro-prieties of remaining longer under the threatening circumstances which surrounded him, it was determined that further delay would be perillous to the enterprise. Orders were accordingly issued to have everything in immediate readiness to precipitate the departure before the dawn.

The island soon became the scene of a busy preparation. It was night, and innumerable lights flitted back and forth along the walks and up and down the river. Voices in suppressed tones were heard, uttering the words of command, while the muffled oars of the boatmen scarce rippled the stream. The kitchen fire of the mansion reflected the shadowy outlines of bending forms, hurriedly engaged in running hells and folding cartridges. No longer the hall echoed the peal of merriment; no longer was heard the boisterous laugh, the piquant jest and song of revelry; no longer the music of the violin inspired the dance. New and animated them; the hour for action had arrived; and, as the curtain lifted on the scene, each man assumed his role in this grand imposing drama. Such was the celerity with which the stores and arms for the expedition were transported to the boats, that long before midnight nothing remained but the embarkation of the new commander and his eager followers.

But of all that busy crowd, none were more active than Mrs. Blennerhasset. An inspired enthusiasm had seized upon her, and urged her forward to the most wonderful efforts. She seemed, indeed, the ruling spirit of the occasion. As her sylph-like form glided gracefully through the various apartments, from kitchen to hall, and from parlor to chamber—tarrying a moment to direct a servant or deliver a message from her husband—many paused from their occupations to catch a glimpse of the heroine of the expedition, and stood in rapt admiration of her grace and energy.

With her, the die had been cast, and on it depended her happiness or her ruin. To retract—even if it were possible—involved the loss of property, of social relation, and, above all, her own proud self-respect. She never yet had yielded to the temptations of fortune or the malice of envy. "Onward I onward!" she urged to the hesitating and doubting husband. "To the plateau of the sunny South—to the land of perennial fields and blue skies, where grow the citron and the olive, the orange and the pine apple. To the land of gold—to the Imperial City—the gay, the elite, the dazzling empire of the New World." The prize, indeed, was a tempting one. But eight years previous they had left the shores of England as adventurers in the forests of the western world. They were now soon to return, not as private persons, but to the Court of St. James—Blennerhasset as the proud representative of that giant empire, sweeping in its mighty circumference one-half of the continent, with its million of subjects; and she as the heroine of the conquest and the partner of his triumphs. "Go," she urged, "before the minions of the Government are upon you. Wait not for me and the children. They dare not molest the mother and her innocents. We shall follow at a more opportune season, and meet again beyond the piers which pursue."

Calling her maids to her assistance, she busied herself in arranging such articles of clothing as might be needed by her husband before she could reach him; at the completion of which, nothing was found neglected which could contribute to his health or administer to his comfort.

As the last trunk left the hall, the clock announced the hour of midnight, the eventful hour of departure. Blennerhasset, issuing from his chamber, ordered all hands to the river.
Drawing her robes about her, his wife placed her arm through his, and both proceeded to the boats in close consultation. A deep snow lay on the ground. The winds, sweeping from the reaches of the river, sighed among the leafless branches, and was penetratingly cold. On the bank, near the stream, a large fire curled its flames into the air, dissipating the immediate darkness, and painting spectral forms against the curtain of night still further beyond. En-

VOL. I. WASHINGTON, D. C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1861. No. 77.

ARRANGEMENTS
INAUGURATION
PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES ON THE FOURTH OF MARCH, 1861.

The doors of the Senate Chamber will be opened at 11 o'clock A. M., for the admission of Senators, and others who, by the arrangement of the Committee, are entitled to admission, as follows:
The Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court.

The Diplomatic Corps, Heads of Departments, and Ex-Members of either branch of Congress, and Members of Congress elect.
Officers of the Army and Navy who, by name, have received the thanks of Congress.
Governors of States and Territories of the Union, and Ex-Governors of States. Assistant Secretaries of Departments, and the Assistant Postmaster General; the Comptrollers, Auditors, Register, and Solicitors of the Treasury, Treasurer, Commissioners, Judges, and The Mayors of Washington and Georgetown, and the reporters in the Senate.
All of whom will be admitted at the north door of the Capitol.

The families of the Diplomatic Corps will enter at the north door of the Capitol, and be conducted to the diplomatic gallery.
Seats will be placed in front of the Secretary's table for the President of the United States and the President elect; and, on their left, for the Committee of Arrangements.

The Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court will have seats on the right of the Chair.
The Diplomatic Corps will occupy seats on the right of the Chair, next to the Supreme Court. Heads of Departments on the left of the Chair.

Officers of the Army and Navy who, by
name, have received the thanks of Congress;
Governors of States and Territories of the Union, Ex-Governors of States, Assistant Secretaries of Departments, and the Assistant Postmaster General, Comptrollers, Auditors, Register, and Solicitor of the Treasury, Treasurer, Commissioners, Judges, and the Mayors of Washington and Georgetown, will occupy seats on the right and left of the main entrance.

Members of Congress, and Members elect, will enter the Senate Chamber by the main entrance, and will occupy seats on the left of the Chair.
The galleries will be reserved for ladies, who will enter the Capitol from the terrace, by the principal western door of the central building, and be conducted to the gallery of the Senate.
The Rotunda shall be closed, and the passages leading thereto kept clear.

The other doors and entrances to the Capitol, except those to be open under this arrangement, will be kept closed.
At 11 o'clock the President and the President elect, accompanied by two members of the Committee of Arrangements, will proceed in a carriage to the north door of the north wing of the Capitol, and entering there will proceed to the President's room.

The Vice President elect will be accompanied to the Capitol by a member of the Committee of Arrangements, and conducted into the Vice President's room, and afterwards into the Senate Chamber, where the oath of office will be administered to him by the Vice President.

The Diplomatic Corps and the Justices of the Supreme Court will enter the Senate Chamber a few minutes before the President elect.
The Senate will assemble at 12 o'clock.
The Senate being ready to receive them, the President and the President elect will be introduced by the Committee of Arrangements to the seats prepared for them in the Senate Chamber.

After a short pause, those assembled in the Senate Chamber will proceed to the platform on the central portico of the Capitol in the following order:
The Marshal of the District of Columbia.
The Supreme Court of the United States.
The Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate.
The Committee of Arrangements.
The President of the United States and the President elect.
The Vice President and the Secretary of the Senate.
The Members of the Senate.
The Diplomatic Corps.
Heads of Departments, Governors of States and Territories, the Mayors of Washington and Georgetown, and other persons who have been admitted into the Senate Chamber.
On reaching the front of the portico, the President elect will take the seat provided for him in front of the platform.
The President and the Committee of Arrangements will occupy a position in the rear of the President elect.
Next in the rear of these the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court will occupy the seats on the left, and the Vice President, Secretary and members of Senate, those on the right.
The Diplomatic Corps will occupy the seats next in the rear of the Supreme Court. Heads of Departments, Governors, and Ex-Governors of States and Territories, and Ex-Members of the Senate, Ex-Members, and Members elect of the House of Representatives, in the rear of the Members of the Senate.
Such other persons as are included in the preceding arrangements will occupy the steps and the residue of the portico.
All being in readiness, the oath of office will be administered to the President elect by the Chief Justice; and on the conclusion of the President's address, the Members of the Senate, preceded by the Vice President, Secretary, and Sergeant-at-arms, will return to the Senate Chamber, and the President, accompanied by the Committee of Arrangements, will proceed to the Senate Chamber, and the Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, will be charged with the Marshal of the District, are charged with the execution of these arrangements; and aided by the police of the Capitol, will preserve order.
All horses and carriages will be excluded from the Capitol square.
Should the weather prove unfavorable, the ceremony of the Inauguration will take place in the Senate Chamber.

SOLOMON FOOT,
JAMES A. PEARCE,
EDWARD D. BAKER,
Committee of Arrangements.

The Inauguration of the President elect.
THE ORDER OF THE PROCESSION.

AIDS. MARSHAL-IN-CHIEF. AIDS.
The Military escort, the commander of which will issue his orders of detail, informing the officers of the District and visiting corps at what place and hour he will form his line, and to whom they must report.
A National Flag, with appropriate emblems.
The President of the United States, with the President elect and suite, with marshals on their left, and the Marshal of the United States for the District of Columbia, (Col. William Selden,) and his deputies, on their right.
The Committee of Arrangements of the Senate.

Ex-Presidents of the United States.
The Republican Association.
The Judiciary.
The Clergy.
Foreign Ministers.
The Corps Diplomatique.
Members elect, members, and ex-members of Congress, and ex-members of the Cabinet.
The Peace Congress.
Heads of Bureaus.
Governors and ex-Governors of States and Territories and members of the Legislatures of the same.

Officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Militia, in full uniform.
Officers and soldiers of the Revolution, of the war of 1812, and of subsequent periods.
The Corporate Authorities of Washington and Georgetown.
Other political and military associations from the District and other parts of the United States.
All organized civil societies.
Professors, schoolmasters, and students, within the District of Columbia; citizens of the District and of States and Territories.

The various organized bodies of citizens, civil and military, who intend to participate in the ceremonies of the inauguration, will, at their earliest convenience, report to the Marshal-in-chief, in what force and of what description of force they will be composed, and when they will arrive here, that the Marshal-in-chief may assign them proper positions where they can form, preparatory to taking position in the column of march.

The procession will be formed in front of the City Hall, and in the streets adjacent thereto, at 9 o'clock A. M., of the 4th of March next.
At 11 o'clock A. M. the procession will move from the parade ground, by Louisiana avenue to Pennsylvania avenue, thence along Pennsylvania avenue, and so far past Willards' Hotel (where the President elect will be) up Fifteenth street, as will enable it to countermand, and halt on Pennsylvania avenue in front of the Hotel. The entire column will, under orders, left face, and the military will present arms. The President and President elect will then be received into the line, and the column will, under orders, right face, and move, escorting them to the Capitol.

Banners and adornments may be borne in the procession; but no offensive emblems or devices will be permitted to disturb the national ceremony.

After the President elect reaches the Capitol, the various portions of the procession will witness the inauguration according to their places, taking care to respect the programme, which has already been published by the Committee of the Senate.

The Military, the Marshals, Assistant Marshals, and Aids, will co-operate in the execution of the arrangements of the Senate.
As soon as the inauguration ceremonies are concluded, the Military, with the Marshals, Assistant Marshals, and Aids, will, as the final ceremony, escort the President and his attendants to the Executive mansion.
The Marshal-in-chief has appointed the following named gentlemen as Marshals, Assistant Marshals, and Aids, to assist him in carrying out the arrangements of the day.

NOTICE
I wish all gentlemen to bear in mind that the plan which I adopted, six years ago, of selling HATS and BOOTS at greatly reduced prices, for cash, is in successful operation. Just received, a full supply of the latest New York styles of DRESS HATS. The very finest Hat at $3.50, a first-rate Hat, $3; and very good, fashionable Hat, $2.50. All of the latest styles of soft HATS and CAPS, at the very lowest prices. I am constantly supplied with a very large stock of these fine DRESS BOOTS, at $3.75—which I have been selling for many years—as well as the very best quality of Patent Leather GAIT-ERS, at $3.50. Fine French Calfskin Gaiters, from $2 to $2.50.
Terms cash. No extra charge in order to obtain bad debts. ANTHONY, Agent for the Manufacturers, Seventh street, second Hat Store from the corner, opposite Avenue House, No. 540.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP.
DR. SCHENCK, of Philadelphia, finds it impossible to visit Washington every week, and has made arrangements to positively be in the city the third Wednesday of every month.
He has a suit of rooms at the Avenue House, where patients can obtain advice free. He only charges when it is necessary to make a thorough examination of the Lungs with the Respirom-eter. S. B. Waite is agent for Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, price $1 per bottle, for the cure of Coughs, Colds, and Consumption; Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic, price $1 per bottle, for Dyspepsia; Schenck's Mandrake Pills, price 25 cents per box, for Liver Bileous Complaints and Constipation of the Bowels. Dr. Schenck would be grateful to those who have been cured by his remedies, if they would leave their certificates of cure with S. B. Waite, corner Seventh street and Louisiana avenue. dec 21-3m
